

LITERARY SOCIETY, U. S. S.

Interesting Meeting Occurred Friday Night, July 3.

Friday night the first regular meeting of the University Summer Literary Society was called to order by the president, Prof. W. H. L. S. Nearly all the members were present, showing that students and faculty are much interested in the organization.

After the first number on the program, a spirited piano duet by the Wimbly, the president arose after acknowledging the honor conferred on him by the society, said the committee had put him on program for a fifteen-minute address. Although he had prepared no speech, and might give the U. S. S. a hash of subjects, he tried to choose one to begin with whether he touched it afterwards or not. Contrary to this intention he proceeded to give the society a well-arranged and interesting address on the advantages of the literary society, saying that he thought it was nothing more beneficial in school work, whether it took the form of the old-time Friday afternoon exercises, when each little fellow had "piece" to speak, or of the more organized organization of the higher grades. Of course, a literary society of no value if, as in some places, thing—or nothing—is accepted as those on the program; good must be required, both in original composition and in oratory. As the human race has emotions, long will oratory be of great importance. He then cited examples in history to show that it is not just art in this age of the printing press, but that great orators are men to fill high places now as in times. There is nothing that so ins the mind to form clear-cut thoughts as the habit of expressing in forcible language.

Therefore, he concluded, teachers should recognize this branch of school work, and establish some form of the literary society in all their schools, either small or large.

A sweet vocal solo by Miss Hard concluded the program.

The president then said that Mr. Bryant had been appointed critic, but having been called away, was unable to make the report. At this moment, a remote corner of the auditorium, Mr. Bryant arose, with the remark that the absent one happened to be present.

If any wondered why he had been chosen critic, he said, they were just looking at him while he explained. He then read some poetry describing himself as red-faced and red-headed, with corresponding qualities and also "a Kentuckian by birth and therefore the meanest on earth." (The reporter supposes it was poetry, because it had a rhyme in it, but is subject to correction.)

Nobody else would expect to get out of Headley's Physics anything so easy to understand as a compliment.

but Mr. Bryant did it by applying a law with a good deal in it about "power," "weight" and "length," to Prof. Cassels. After saying that the only thing he had to criticize about the program was its shortness, he took his seat, amid more applause than a critic usually gets.

The lights were now turned low, and the first stereopticon slide, picturing the Dunsink Observatory, was thrown on the screen by Major Floyd, while Dr. Yocum introduced his astronomical lecture by a few remarks concerning last Sunday's eclipse. The crescent form of the light filtered through small interstices, he said, could be explained on same principle as the image seen by means of the camera obscura. Several slides illustrated the different kinds of eclipse, both of the sun and moon, and Dr. Yocum touched upon facts connected with their cause and recurrence in a most interesting manner. Others representing the cause of high and low tide were clearly explained, and still others showed comets darting through space. These were accompanied by an instructive explanation showing that the popular theory that a collision with a comet would be destructive to the earth, is false, on account of the extreme lightness of those bodies. Besides these slides were some showing diagrams of the solar system, with relative sizes and distances of the planets; sun-spots; views of the moon's surface, and of Mars, Venus and Saturn. It is indeed a privilege to hear Dr. Yocum, and no one who was present could fail to be interested and instructed, especially on the subject of eclipses, for these phenomena were illustrated and explained so clearly.

Dr. Yocum spoke also of "sun-spots." He said that the gases in the sun are heated to such an extent that they emit no perceptible light rays, while those on the surface are luminous. At certain periods terrible cyclones occur which sweep away the luminous surface gases from a portion of the sun, allowing the highly compressed, non-luminous interior gas to be seen as a sun-spot. These were only a few of the many subjects he touched upon so interestingly.

At the conclusion of the lecture, the U. S. S. L. S. adjourned until next Friday night, when another program will be rendered. E. V. S.

MELROSE NEWS NOTES.

Melrose, July 4.—N. Price reports having a fine crop of peaches for his canning factory. He has already 3,000 3-pound cans in stock and expects to fill 2,000 more. Most of them are already spoken for. Later on he will can tomatoes, corn, etc.

The recent fine rains have improved the crops wonderfully, and the farmers and truck growers are feeling decidedly better.

Miss S. Atwater of Waldo was a visitor at Mrs. Grimes' on Tuesday. From recent reports we learn that Frank Yearwood is still in a very serious condition. He was taken yesterday afternoon to Atlanta in charge of Dr. Ward of that city. His friends hope to hear favorable news soon.

Mrs. J. M. Barnett returned on Wednesday from a pleasant visit at her son's in Hawthorn.

AN INTERESTING MEETING.

The Colfax Rebekah Lodge Installs Officers.

Another successful term has just ended for Colfax Lodge. Miss Lina Tousey, our Noble Grand for the past term, has done her work faithfully and well. On July 2 the following officers were installed for the ensuing term:

Mrs. Lillian Morris, N. G.; Kattie Carlisle, V. G.; Nettie L. Robb, Sec.; Jessie Burnett, Treas.; Hattie Kelley, Warden; Maude McKay, Conductor; Mrs. Lucretia Jernigan, Inside Guardian; Alice Thomas, Outside Guardian; Mrs. Maude Huffman, Chaplain; Gertrude Cushman, R. S. N. G.; Alice Butler, L. S. N. G.; Bettie Goss, R. S. V. G.; Mrs. S. B. Rogers, L. S. V. G.; Tirzah Witherspoon, Pianist; Maude Shutt, Chairman of Relief Committee.

Immediately after the installation Mr. I. E. Webster arose and remarked that some thought it unnecessary to install Miss Nettie Robb, as she had served as secretary for so many terms, but he thought differently and asked the young lady to rise, which she wonderfully but obediently did. Mr. Webster then told in a very pleasing manner in behalf of the lodge how much they appreciated her services in the past, she having been their valued secretary for several years, and had never failed in her duty, and it was his pleasant duty in behalf of the lodge to present her with a slight token of their love and regard for her. He then presented her with a beautiful Past Noble Grand pin. It was a perfect surprise to Miss Nettie, but she was equal to the occasion and responded in a few well-chosen words, assuring them of her sincere gratitude to the lodge. After the close of the meeting ice cold watermelons were served in abundance, and all went to their several homes in a happy frame of mind.

SATURDAY'S BALL GAME.

Y. M. C. A. Team Was Defeated by the Small Margin of One.

The ball game Saturday resulted in a victory for the Independence team. The attendance was indeed very discouraging, but those few who did attend enjoyed a beautiful game. The Y. M. C. A. team started off with a lead of two runs in the first inning, four in the second, two in the third, one in the fourth.

The Independents made their first run in the fifth inning, and after that the Y. M. C. A. boys simply could not make the home plate.

The game was well worth seeing from start to finish, and we promise a great game next Thursday. Everybody should turn out and help the boys. The merchants of the city will be asked to close and it is expected they will comply.

The score by innings:
Independence .. 9 0 0 1 2 2 0 1—19
Y. M. C. A. ... 2 4 2 1 0 0 0 0—9
